

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Immigration Monitor celebrates its first anniversary this month. I distinctly remember the initial days of planning when our team spent many sleepless nights discussing the many features that would make our newsletter different... more personal and interesting. The longest sessions were when we had to finalize the name. I can't help but smile when I recollect the various names we came up with... Immigration Letterbox, Immigration Express... even Immigration Train! 😊

We wanted to make this Anniversary edition special. Thanks to our Graphics Designing Team, Immigration Monitor has a new look this time... we really have good reason to celebrate our success... and its all because of you. Do you know how many people received Immigration Monitor last month? Are you wondering what happens to the feedback we receive from you all? How have we grown during the past few months? All these and more of your questions are answered in this month's In Focus article.

We are receiving a lot of encouraging feedback on our initiative to write about visa processing at various consulates. We have been receiving a lot of emails from our readers requesting us to research and write about visa processing at the consulates in their home country. This month's Immigration Article takes you across the border to Canada for information on K-1 visa processing at the U.S. consulate in Vancouver. Keep your suggestions flowing in so that we continue to provide you with all the information you would need to file your visa application.

Congratulations to Anna Mekhed for winning last month's Immigration Quiz and receiving a FREE online consultation with VisaPro attorney. I would also like to make a special mention of the responses posted by Arthur Olszanski, Ganesh Srinivasaniyer and Melany Tellez. We had to resort to a draw of lots to select the winner this time as a lot of participants gave excellent responses. Do you want to see your name in the next issue of Immigration Monitor? This month will be the best time for you as the winner of this month's Immigration Quiz will receive a SURPRISE GIFT in addition to the regular FREE online consultation. Visit www.visapro.com to do your research and email your responses quickly.

Now that you have been reading your Immigration Monitor for a year, which sections do you like the most? Is it the Immigration News section that provides you with updates on the major happenings during the month or is it the Questions and Answers section that provides responses to your queries? Do you look forward to read what I write in From the Editor's Desk section every month or is it the Success Stories section that you are most interested in? This month's Your Opinion section is a bit different. We ask you to

The past one year has been an eventful one for us. We need to make the next one even more interesting. In the pipeline are a bunch of new services and various interactive features on our website. Next month you will see the launch of a service that will be unique to VisaPro. I am sure you will be excited when I say that you will be able to assess your visa options for working in the U.S., and determine your eligibility for those visas. VisaPro's experienced attorneys will also provide you with a detailed written assessment of your specific situation. The wait is almost over... so keep a close watch on our website.

We are also looking forward to conduct a series of seminars and interactive workshops in India and the U.K. in October. More information on our upcoming events will be published on our website very shortly and I will update you on everything in the next issue of Immigration Monitor. See you next month with all this and much more.

I hold a 5-year multiple-entry B-2 visa which is expiring in October 2006. I need to travel to the U.S. in September 2006 and will need to stay for 5 months. Should I get a new visa because my old one will expire in two months or can I use the current one to visit the U.S.? Will I be allowed to stay only till October if I use my old visa?

The Question:

I have an H-1B visa and my wife has an H-4 dependent visa. She recently gave birth to a son, who now becomes a U.S. citizen by birth. Does that mean that we are eligible to apply for a Green Card as the Immediate Relative of a U.S. Citizen and can we file for Adjustment of Status?

The Winning Response:

Having a child born in the US, unfortunately does not automatically allow you to file for a green card as the immediate relative of a U.S. citizen. Your US son can only file a petition for you after he turns 21 years of age and is able to show proof that he can provide for you and your wife financially. In your case, since you are an H-1B visa holder, you can have your employer file an application for permanent labor

SUCCESS STORIES

VisaPro is a wonderful company that offers immigration services on line. Immigration forms can be confusing and if not done correctly along with the proper documentation the delay can be many months and possibly years. VisaPro has an easy on line system to use and [the VisaPro legal team] was always just a phone call away to help with some of the issues that came up with my fiancée's K-1 visa. My fiancée now has her visa and will be coming to join me in September and we will use VisaPro for the rest of the immigration process. I would recommend VisaPro to anyone who wants to make sure their immigration is done correctly. Thanks VisaPro and a big thanks to [the VisaPro legal team]. [The VisaPro legal team] is the greatest !
